

Rouse-Eric-20050315143004

To: Julie L. Sigall
Associate Register for Policy & International Affairs

Date: 03/15/2005

From: Eric Rouse

Comment:

I use a lot of abandonware, licensed computer software that is no longer produced. It can be impossible to find, or even use, because no-one wants to infringe on the copyright. It makes it a real problem supporting the heritage systems that I have in place. Copyrights should be more clear for us individuals who can't hire a lawyer everytime we want to use an old product.